 "A LOVER MIGHT PUT SOME SENSE IN HIS LETTERS—EVEN IF IT ONLY BE POETIC SENSE," PLEADS BILLIE BURKE.

BY BILLIE BURKE

The man or woman who takes the time to write a graceful little note which acknowledges a favor is the one who has been well brought up.

It is easy to write letters of congratulations—for most people like to say pleasant things to others.

Never, however, write "congratulations" to a bride; only the groom is to be congratulated. You may wish the bride happiness or offer any other felicitation that you wish.

It is usual to use the word "regret" when you refuse an invitation and more courteous to add, if possible, the reason why you cannot accept the invitation. After having accepted an invitation to dinner, only your own severe illness or the death of some one of your immediate family should keep you from filling your obligation.

Letters of introduction depend upon whom you are introducing. You may, to an intimate friend, say that you expect Miss— to find in the one who presents this an addition to her circle of friends, etc., etc.

Unless you know the one to whom you are writing very well do not talk too much about yourself and your own affairs.

Remember "things" are better subjects for letters than "people" unless you know that your friend is mutually interested in the person of whom you write.

If one would stop a little to write the kind thoughts one thinks to absent friends, while they are alive and could be made happy by them, it would make life happier for most of us. We say or write too few of these appreciative words, and then, when it is impossible for them to be heard, we say them over the soulless clay of the dead.

Many persons shrink from writing letters to the bereaved or grief-stricken. They fear to be intrusive, but anyone who has suffered will remember with what appreciation letters or real sympathy are received.

Longfellow wrote to a friend in trouble: "Words cannot reach your sorrow. I can only press your hand in silence." Ruskin once wrote:

"I feel too much sympathy with you to be able to write of it."

Some one has said that immediately one falls in love one becomes a blithering idiot, and when we read the love letters of even the most wonderful men and women of history one can still hold to that opinion.

When writing a love letter it is well to remember that words are the least trustworthy mode of expressing one's amorous emotions.

The lover is apt to be over-enthusiastic, but he should at least put a little sense in his letters—even if it be poetic sense.

A letter is a written conversation and should be simple, cordial, unaffected; above all, get into the habit of letter writing—it is one of the greatest and most charming of accomplishments.

Joseph Smith of New York city is a guest of Niles friends.

Mrs. Leonie Keating of Chicago is a guest of her mother, Mrs. E. B. Ives.

Mrs. H. M. Scott returned to Evanston, Ill., Wednesday after a visit with Mrs. W. W. Dresden.

SEE IF THE CHILD'S TONGUE IS COATED

If Cross, Feverish, Constipated, Give "California Syrup of Figs."

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative"; they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a 5-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

OUR FELLER CITIZENS

By HI SIBLEY

Following a precedent established some time ago, it is up to us to introduce the Francis Sayles players and to our feller citizens. Inasmuch as we do not know the Francis Sayles players—in fact never have seen them—we are undertaking a large contract. However, we feel it incumbent upon us to take this step since this company—according to reports, not from press agents or managers, but from those who have seen the stock company work—is making a showing way ahead of expectations.

Ladies and gentlemen, we have with us today:

Francis Sayles, leading man, born within the confines of this United States 26 years ago. Mr. Sayles has only one failing, as far as we can learn, and that is volley ball. While in Richmond he spent all his spare time at this pastime, and when he didn't have a spare time, he occasionally went without his supper to make spare time. The Y. M. C. A. volley ball team of that city entitled a poem to him when he left.

Miss Olga Worth, the daughter of a Michigan family, and it is said her mother was a grand opera singer. Unfortunately, not having seen Miss Worth, we are unable to describe her appearance, but she may be a blonde, may be a brunette, she may be tall or she may be short, but we are satisfied that as the leading lady she leaves nothing to be desired.

Irwin Reed, juvenile singer, was taken from the Poli Stock company in Providence, R. I., one of the oldest cities in the country.

Hal Worth, brother of Miss Worth, comes from Kansas City in the other direction. And according to Fred Keller, he comes from a very well governed city.

J. J. Flynn wears a cap when he rehearses, we are told, and is a native of New Orleans, famous for its Mardi Gras (this is a festival, not a plant). Coming from New Orleans, Mr. Flynn therefore is a southerner. No stock company is complete without its southerner.

W. Francis Clark, who takes the part of ex-Judge Stott in this week's play, came to the Francis Sayles Co. from the Academy stock, New York.

Ernest G. Kast, being a recent addition, is more or less of an unknown quantity; beyond the fact that he took the part of Rev. Pontifex Deetle in the "Lion and the Mouse," we cannot tell anything more about him.

Miss Erba Robeson, character woman, has appeared in all kinds of productions, and modestly disclaims any relationship with Eleanor Robeson.

Miss Meta Eyfeth is a St. Paul young woman. St. Paul holds some interest for us, being the present home of the Wright Huntington players.

Miss Pauline Le Roy started her histrionic career with Mansfield in the Walnut st. theater, Cincinnati.

Miss Margaret Owens is a member of the company.

Dave Heiland is manager of the company, and having met him, put him down as a very accommodating sort of person. He has an air of pros-

HELD FOR JEWELRY THEFT. CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Melville Reeves, a druggist and his 19 year old wife, were arrested Wednesday in their home charged with the theft of jewelry valued at $8,180 from the office of T. J. Hyman, secretary of the Illinois Steel company. Part of the jewelry was the property of Hyman's daughter wife of Francis Porter, a former broker who recently went through bankruptcy proceedings.
